INTRODUCTION

This publication was prepared to assist Montana counselors, teachers, school librarians and students in locating up-to-date occupational and related educational information. The sources contained herein have not been evaluated on the basis of objective criteria and therefore the Director of Guidance Services does not underwrite any of these.

Persons interested in evaluating occupational materials should consult the publication, Occupational Literature by Gertrude Forrester, H. W. Wilson Company, 950 University Avenue, Bronx, New York 10052 (Part I Introduction, Pages 7-11). A listing of the evaluative criteria appears below:

- |                           |                                    |
|---------------------------|------------------------------------|
| 1. Authenticity           | 6. Information Not Found Elsewhere |
| 2. Objectivity            | 7. Cost                            |
| 3. Recency and Timeliness | 8. Clear Style                     |
| 4. Suitability            | 9. Well Organized Format           |
| 5. Availability           | 10. Motivation for Future Reading  |

In addition, the National Vocational Guidance Association has also developed standards for appraising occupational literature. These evaluations are contained in the publication NVGA Bibliography of Current Occupational Literature and in the Vocational Guidance Quarterly Journal. Both publications are available from the American Personnel and Guidance Association, 1605 New Hampshire Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20009.

DIAGRAMS FOR EXPLORING OCCUPATIONS
RELATED TO SCHOOL SUBJECTS

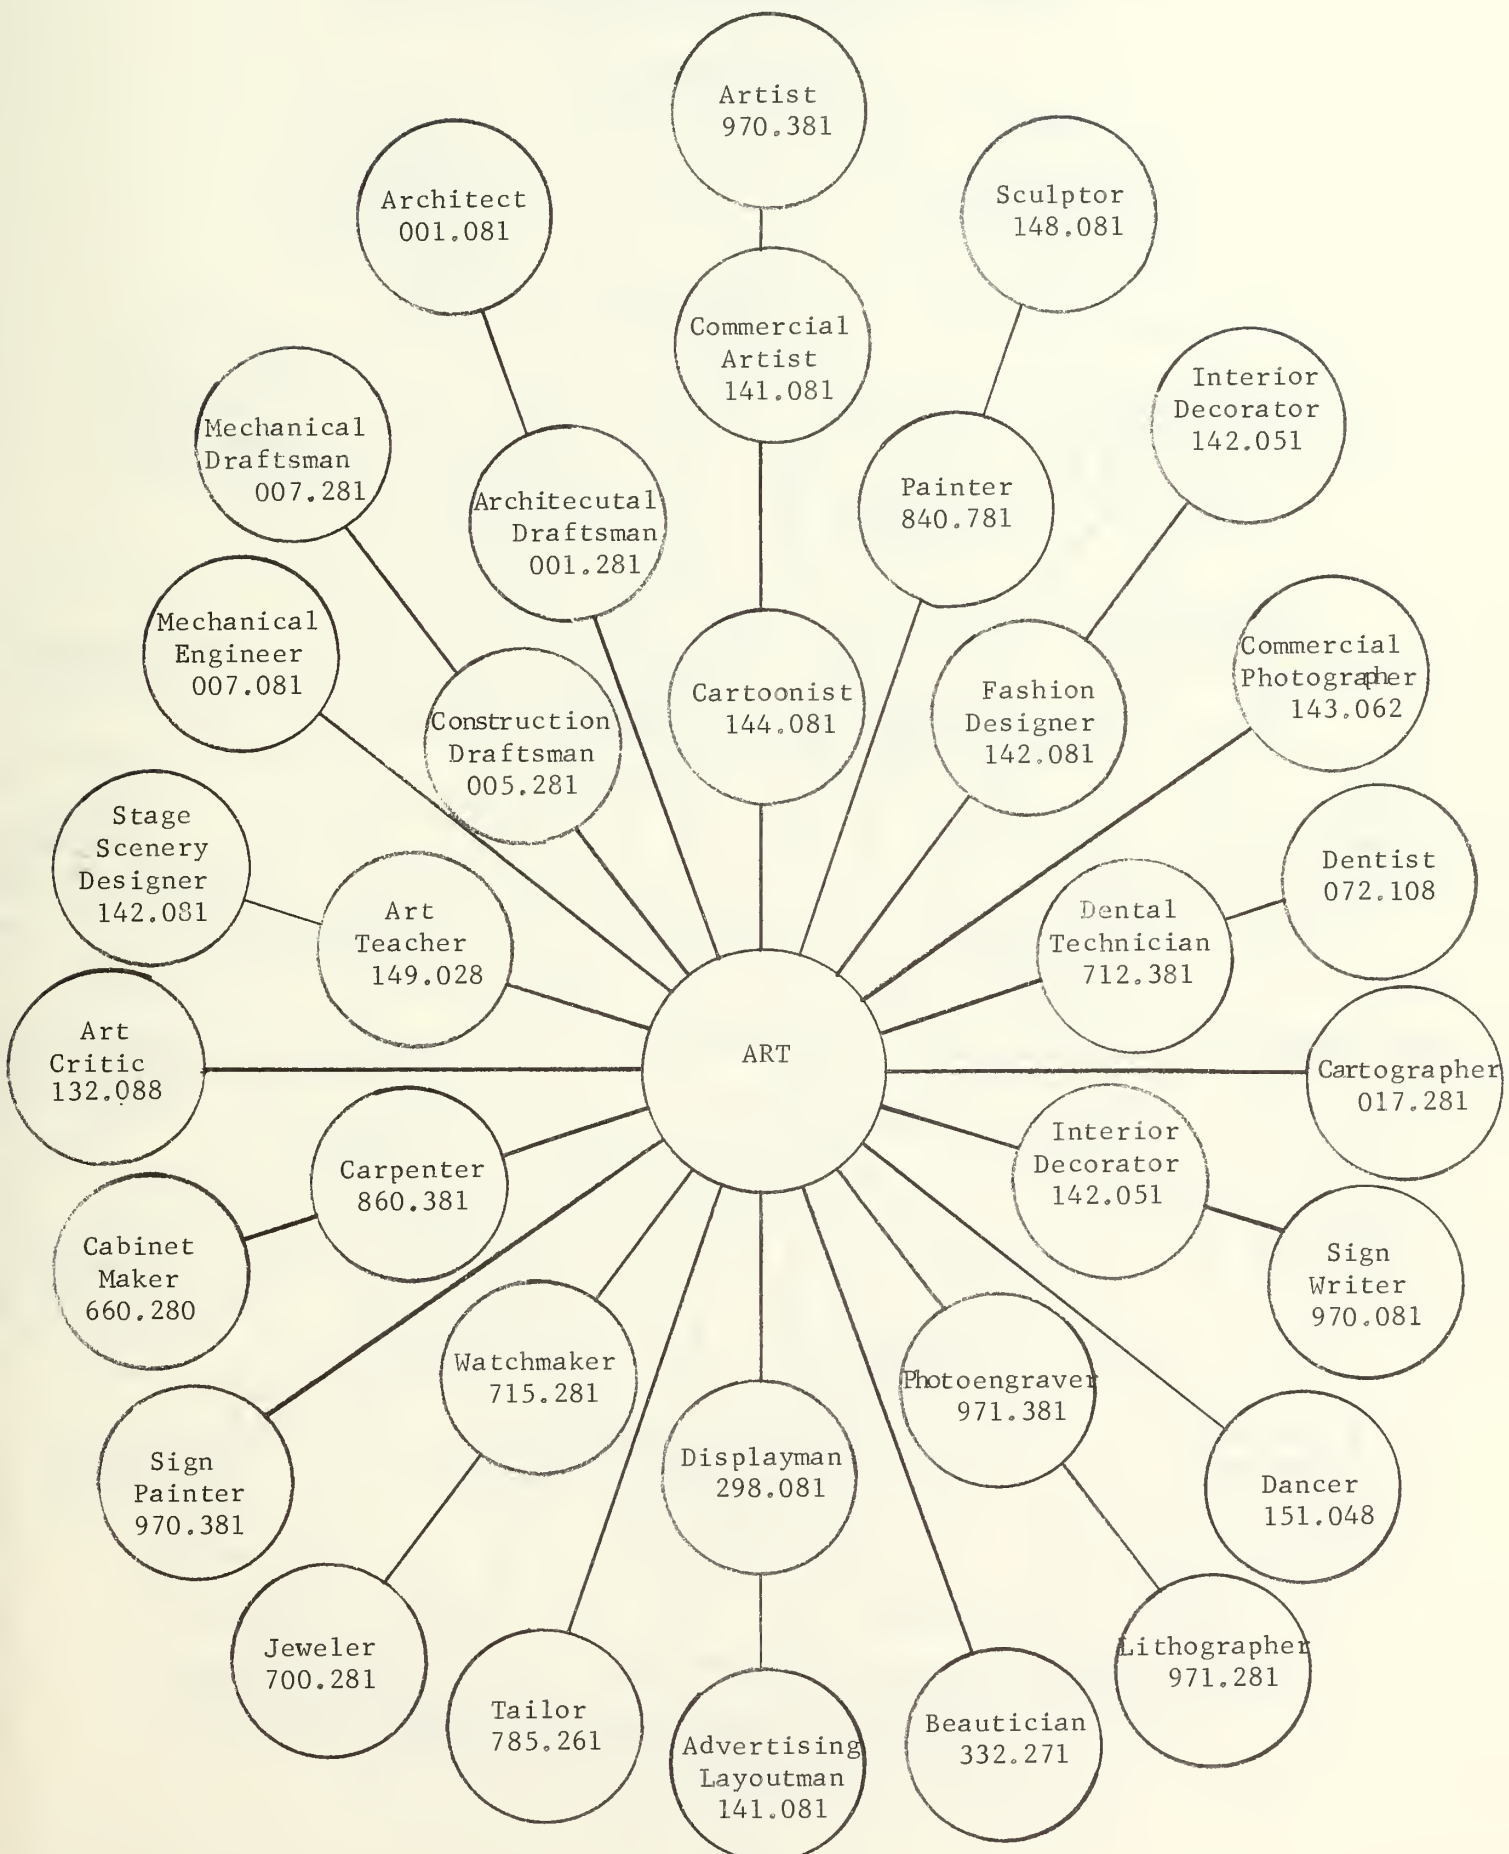

The diagrams on the following pages are designed to assist students who are undecided about a specific occupation, but have interest in one of the major subject areas. Each occupation has been coded according to the Dictionary of Occupational Titles for easy reference. Students desiring to obtain additional information about a certain occupation can refer to the career file by using the Dictionary of Occupational Titles code number shown below each occupation on the charts which follow.

The Dictionary of Occupational Titles is a United States Department of Labor publication consisting of two volumes. Volume I of the third edition contains names and definitions of the various occupations in the economy arranged alphabetically according to the job titles. There are 21,741 separate occupations defined which are known by 13,809 additional titles making a total of 35,550 titles defined. The second volume complements Volume I in which thousands of jobs currently in the American economy are listed and defined. Volume II groups have the same basic occupational, industrial or worker characteristics to help the user discern relationships among occupations; and as a standard approach to classifying the abilities, vocational experiences and potentials of workers.
